'Food Thief' Lurks In Bean Family

LINCOLN, NEB.—A new kind of "food thief" has been found lurking in soybeans, lima beans, black eye peas, garden beans and peanuts.

This thief is a natural part of the raw bean. It can prevent the living body from properly using proteins, the foodstuffs essential for health.

It does this by interfering with a chemical, the enzyme trypsin, which splits up proteins so that the body can use them.

Fortunately, this food thief is killed by cooking or heating. But its discovery, in so many different common foods, poses a new problem for nutritionists.

It points to possible drawbacks if humans eat these things raw or if they are fed in uncooked form to animals.

Some time ago scientists noticed that soybeans were better as food if they were cooked or toasted a bit. Animals eating the cooked beans grew better than those eating uncooked soybean meal. Some substance in the uncooked bean was responsible.

At the University of Nebraska agricultural experiment station, R. M. Sandstedt and Woldell E. Ham showed that this something was a chemical that prevented trypsin from breaking up proteins efficiently.

The chemical thief could be extracted from the soybeans, they showed. When it was added to animal foods, it slowed down the growth of rats, chickens and turkeys.

Cut-Rate Sale of One Dollar Bills Attracts Few Customers

BLUEFIELD, W. VA. — One-dollar bills don't sell very well here—even for 89 cents

By way of advertising for his new store Otis Austin offered to sell each adult customer two $1 bills for 89 cents apiece.

But most people thought there was some catch to it and business has been "pretty slow," Austin reported.

Some hard-to-please customers have even grumbled that 89 cents is more than a dollar is worth anyhow.

Son Tries to Evict Mother With Noise Making Bull

OTTAWA, ILL. — The appellate court says farmer Henry Factly, jr., must not try to evict his aged mother, Rosa, from his home by using a noise making bull, an electric fence and other devices designed to annoy her.

The decision said that Factly:

Tied a bull to a tree near the house and "provided the bull a plaything which caused his mother many sleepless nights. He tied a milk can to the tree, leaving it suspended in the air, and placed in it some rocks so that when the bull butted the can, terrific noises would result."

Placed an electric fence across the driveway, "so that his unsuspecting mother might receive a sudden shock."

Caused the water supply to be shut off.

Chased the chickens from the chicken house and placed iron pipes in the weeds near by, "so that his mother would stumble and fall over them."

According to testimony, Henry Factly, sr., and his wife, Rosa, deeded the 94-acre farm to their son in 1936, and he signed an agreement that they could live in the farmhouse all their lives The father died in 1941. Henry, jr., farms the property but his mother and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fillmore, reside in the house.

Hen Crosses Road to Lay Eggs in Neighbor's Bedroom

DENMARK, IA.—E. A. Lauffer claims a neighbor of his has been getting an egg delivered regularly in his bedroom from a hen whose owner lives across the road.

Lauffer said the hen, apparently looking for a place to lay her egg, saw the open bedroom window of the neighbor's house, went in and laid the egg on the bed.

She did this every morning until she started setting, Lauffer said, and then came back to repeat the act when she resumed laying.

Find Runaway After 58 Years' Absence

LANCASTER, PA.—A 76-year-old man who ran away from his Newark, N. J., home 58 years ago and was given up for dead has been found in the Lancaster county home for aged.

A volunteer worker in the home was given credit for solving the disappearance of Samuel Gleitzman.

Five years ago a man who gave his name as Samuel Gleitz came to the home with a broken leg. He said he had no home and no relatives. He has lived here since then.

Mrs. Abe Levitt became interested in Gleitz. After hours of conversation she learned he ran away from home because he was tired of his father's strict discipline.

Mrs. Levitt's friend, Mrs. J. M. Booth, was going to Newark and offered to search for Gleitz's relatives. There were no listings under that name in the Newark phone book.

On a hunch, Mrs. Booth looked at the Gleitzman listings and selected at random the number of Harold A. Gleitzman.

Gleitzman remembered his long-lost uncle.

Back in Lancaster, Gleitz was reluctant to talk about himself, but admitted to Mrs. Levitt that he had changed his name and that Harold Gleitzman is his nephew.

The aged man chuckled when he recalled that for more than two years after leaving home he worked in a small hat shop "only a few blocks from my home."

"The police were looking for me, but they didn't find me," he told Mrs. Levitt.

Police Find Charred Body of Man Wired to Wheel of Auto

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The charred body of John A. Hoover, 54-year-old business man, was found wired to the wheel of his flame-swept automobile on an abandoned road south of the city.

Hoover disappeared while en route to a boxing tournament. He was carrying about $950.

Wind-driven snow had almost covered his car in a rut on the old road.

Police said Hoover had not been shot. They said he apparently had been soaked in gasoline and set afire.

"There must have been something behind it more than the money he carried," one of the policemen surmised.

Hoover was associated with the Hoover Bros. Construction company and the Federal Engineering company here. He also had interests in Arkansas coal mines.

He lived a short distance from where his car was found.

Battleship Oregon Will Rust in Guam

WASHINGTON.—Famous old battleship Oregon, which set a speed record in 1898 in a dash from San Francisco to Florida to help finish off the Spanish fleet, will rust away in Guam.

It will not be brought back as a memorial of the Spanish-American war, the navy has decided.

Stripped of its engines and superstructure during World War II, the hull of the Oregon was used as an ammunition barge at Guam.

Navy officials said it would cost too much to repair the rusting hulk for reconditioning as a naval shrine stationed at Portland, Ore.

The 10,288-ton battleship made its mark in American history 50 years ago with its remarkable run to join the American fleet off Santiago harbor in Cuba where the Spanish fleet was bottled up.

The Oregon raced from San Francisco 14,700 miles around Cape Horn through the Straits of Magellan to Jupiter Inlet, Fla., averaging 11.6 knots—an incredible speed for that period, according to navy records.

In the decisive naval battle on July 3, when the Spanish fleet of Adm. Cervera tried to escape from Santiago harbor, the Oregon destroyed the Spanish flagship the Admirante Oquindo, put the Vizcaya out of action, and captured the Colon with the help of the Cruiser, Brooklyn.

Two Men Find Open Deposits Of Uranium Ore in Wyoming

DENVER, COLO.—The existence of open deposits of uranium which may add greatly to the nation's store of atom bomb material was reported by two Denver men.

The pea-sized yellow pellets were found in dry creek beds in the Red Desert northwest of Rawlins in southern Wyoming. The men said a specimen assayed as high as 30 per cent pure uranium. The ore can be mined with a bulldozer or a steam shovel.

Kenneth Robinson, an attorney, and Walter Byron, a former private investigator and mining man, announced plans to mine the ore.

The atomic energy commission in Washington said the discovery is "of sufficient interest to warrant further examinations."

Existence of the ore in southern Wyoming has been known for years. A sample was sent to Mme Curie in 1910. She said it was uranium, but it was useless for her work. The United States geological survey looked it over in 1944.

Recently, Byron made an operating agreement with owners of a lease of nine square miles of state-owned land in the area. He had it assayed, and he and Robinson conferred with the atomic energy commission.
